Columbian Tavern.

SOLOMON DREW takes the present opportunity of returning his grateful thanks to the public, for the liberal encouragement he has received since his commencement in business, and begs leave to assure them that no exertion has been spared to render his establishment convenient for the reception of travellers and a desirable house for respectable boarders. His stock of wines, liquors, beer, &c. have been selected with attention, and he trusts they will be found not inferior to any in the district. His stabling is fitted up in the best manner, and well adapted for travellers, or others who wish to have their horses kept by the month, week, or otherwise. At the suggestion of some of his friends, he has appropriated a part of his house to the Oyster Business, where will be furnished oyster suppers in the most comfortable manner and reasonable terms. N. B. The subscriber will carry on the Tailoring business as heretofore, and returns his acknowledgements to his customers in that line, for favors received and hopes to merit their future support. Notice.

DIFFICULTIES arising from the nature of the following work, the publisher has been compelled to remove to Philadelphia for the better execution of his plan. The editorial department has in consequence fallen into other hands. Mr. ALLEN's present engagements rendering it impossible to superintend it in another city. The friends and relations of the different signers to the Declaration of Independence are therefore requested to direct their favors to the publisher, No. 443, Market-street, Philadelphia.

PROPOSALS

By Joseph M. Sanderson,

For Publishing by Subscription,

A Biography of the Signers

OF THE

Declaration of Independence,

Accompanied with Plates.

To which will be annexed a History of the Proceedings of Congress, during the passage of the Law, and the Declaration itself, with the fac simile Engravings of the Signatures.

By JOHN SANDERSON.

TO THE PUBLIC.

When we consider the personal qualities of the statesmen whose names are annexed to the Declaration of Independence, the glorious occasion which demanded the exercise of their wisdom and deliberation, and the influence of their councils on the interests of mankind, we must acknowledge that very rarely a more imposing spectacle has been offered to the world; and we shall seek in vain in the annals of nations, for an event more worthy of commemoration, and of being cherished forever in the hearts of a grateful and generous people. The love of independence is interwoven with the frame and constitution of the human mind. It is almost the first sentiment that animates the infant's features in the cradle; and amongst all the actions and enterprises of man, none has awakened into activity a greater exertion of the virtuous energies of his nature, none has excited a greater warmth of veneration, and has more imperious claims upon our gratitude, than resistance to tyranny and political aggression. In all republican states the first tribute of genius has been paid to the patriot or the hero who has promoted the cause of liberty and maintained the independence and dignity of man. The animated canvas and breathing marble have rescued his features from the grasp of death, and the pen of the historian has inscribed the achievements to the imperishable records of fame. It would indeed be no favorable prognostic of the perpetuity of our republican institutions to discover an insensibility to the obligations we owe the memory of the illustrious patrons of American freedom. They have raised us, by their magnanimity, from the arbitrary dominion of a foreign power, to the distinguished elevation of a sovereign and independent people; they have asserted and maintained the imprescriptible rights of humanity by the "mutual pledge of their pledge of their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors;" and, as long as virtue holds her empire in the hearts of their successors, the example of these generous benefactors will not be lost to the world; their names will not pass away nor be forgotten, or their glorious deeds be confounded in the common and casual transaction of life. Ingratitude is a vice that in nations, as well as individuals, indicates the last degree of degeneracy and corruption; it is a vice that implies the absence of every virtue; it was in the age of Caligula that the name of the Scipios was proscribed, that the state of Brutus brought death on its possessor. "The glory of our ancestors is the light of posterity," and the homage of the living cannot be offered to the merits of the illustrious dead with an effectual or sterile admiration. Great and splendid actions will seldom be achieved by men who have humble or ordinary objects in prospect. It is by contemplating the life and character of those who are marked out from the multitude by their eminent qualities, that we become emulous of their virtues and their renown. The trophies of Miltiades interrupted the sleeps of Themistocles; and Theseus, bearing the exploits of Hercules, was fired with his spirit, and became the successful rival of his fame. The rude savage of the desert listens with rapture to the deeds of his ancestors, and hangs around his but the emblems of his father's valor. More need not be said to enforce the utility of the publication we have undertaken, and which we now submit to the patronage of our fellow-citizens. With a hope, that from the liberality of their encouragement, we shall be able to present it to the public worthy of their approbation. We must depend for the illustration of many of the characters of our biography, upon the generosity of their surviving relatives and friends, to furnish us with whatever interesting materials may be in their possession; for which, with our grateful acknowledgments, we promise a copy of the entire work as a compensation.

CONDITIONS. I. The work will be published in numbers or half volumes of 200 pages, octavo, and contained in ten numbers. To the first will be prefixed an appropriate frontispiece—and the work will be commenced with the declaration of independence, with engraved facsimiles of the signatures, and a compendious detail of the proceedings of congress, during the passage of the law. Each of the lives, unless when it is impracticable, will be preceded by a likeness of the person, engraved by the best artists in the United States. II. It will be printed on fine paper, made expressly for the purpose, and delivered to subscribers at two dollars and fifty cents per number, payable on delivery. * * Subscriptions received at this office. ARISTOTLE'S HYMN TO VIRTUE.

Translated from the Greek.

The following specimen of the great philosopher's poetical talents was composed as a tribute to the memory of Hercules, governor of the Alarcians, who was betrayed, under the mask of hospitality, by Menon, the Rhodian, to the king of Persia. The story is forgotten; but the beauty of the medal still survives.

Virtue! replete with endless care,
And dark with varied strife,
What glories can with thine compare,
To gild the scenes of life?
In Greece, what joy thy keenest pain,
Or death on carnage'd plain!

No sweets but thine, of loveliest mould,
Such fruit immortal keep;
Ancestral pride and hoarded gold,
Or pain dispelling sleep:
Thine is the charm that lights the brave,
And glitters on the hero's grave.

Alcides felt thy glowing name
Each toilsome march inspire,
And Leda's offspring own'd the flame,
That beam'd ethereal fire:
Achilles smil'd with parting breath,
And Ajax flew to welcome death.

The monarch of Atrean race,
By virtue's semblance mov'd,
Received the perjurd slaves embrace,
And perish'd while he lov'd.

The hero in immortal verse,
Each votive muse shall sing,
Increasing strains his fame rehearse,
And rapture tune the strings:
While all shall chaunt in praise to Jove,
The honors of a constant love. M. E.

THE CHINESE.

But little is known, either in Europe or America, of the manners and customs of the inhabitants of the "Celestial Empire," or of the arts, sciences, literature or religion of that singular people. The prying eye of curiosity, which in every other country ascends much, turns from China with scarcely the smallest gratification—such is the caution, jealousy and circumspection of both the government and people. From the little that has been learnt, however, it is very certain that time seems to have stood still with the Chinese. We find them, (says the Quarterly Review) neither improved in learning, nor in morals, nor in the system of government and legislation, nor one whit more enlightened in religion or the sciences, than they were three thousand years ago. The cut of their robes, the plan of their houses, the form of their furniture have not changed in all that time. But as human nature is every where pretty much the same, China appears nevertheless to have its male and female elegancies, as well as other countries. In a Chinese novel called Hung-how-Mung; or the Red Chamber Dreams, part of which has been translated by a Mr. Davis, two characters are introduced, whose costume may be amusing to the belles and beaux, dandies and exquisites, of this country. The dress of the lady, who is denominated a La-tze, (something sharp or pungent) is thus described:—"On her head her knot of hair was adorned with gold and silk, and eight precious stones pendent. It was fastened with a pin of pearls dropping from five little eagles. An ornament of virgin gold, enlivened with insects, embraced her neck. Around her waist was an upper dress of deep red coloured silk, on which were embroidered an hundred gold butterflies, fluttering among flowers. Over this was a narrow garment made of the skins of stone colored mice, and silk of five different colors. Below all was a petticoat of foreign crapes, of a green color, sprinkled with flowers. She had a pair of most bewitching three-cornered eyes, and two eye brows curved like the young willow leaves; her person was slender, light and airy. The gentleman was also covered with butterflies, fluttering among flowers of gold; his beautiful nose was full and round, like the gill bladder of a quadruped; and he had a face like the moon in the midst of autumn—covered with white paint, and lips tinged with vermilion. From his head to the end of his tail,* which dangled to the ankles, hung four strings of precious stones set in gold. His upper tunic was pink spangled with flowers; his trousers and stockings were embroidered, and his shoes were of a deep red color, with thick white soles. This irresistible youth is said to have ten thousand thoughts of love collected in the corner of his eye."

* Quia, we presume.

It is a good rule for every one who has competency of fortune to lay aside a certain portion of his income for pious and charitable uses.

ALEXANDRIA: THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 4.

At the election of the Fire Insurance Company of Alexandria, on Monday last, Jas. B. Nickolls was appointed Secretary, and not James Miskell, as inaccurately stated in our paper of yesterday.

In publishing the names of Directors of the Columbian Insurance Office, yesterday, the name of JAMES SANDERSON was accidentally omitted—it should have appeared first on the list.

It is well known that during the past summer, numerous mechanics have arrived in the District, from the Eastern States. The public buildings at Washington, and the reports of the increasing prosperity of the neighboring towns, have allured the enterprising from their homes, only to meet with disappointment. We have always thought that the spirit of emigration has been carried too far; and that, in the main, those who stay at home do much better than their itinerant neighbors. The following article from the Newburyport Herald, is in support of our opinion; and we are told that there are many carpenters from that town now in this place.

"The pressure of the times past has driven from our town a larger proportion of mechanics than perhaps any other class of citizens; the return of some of them, particularly carpenters, we should think would prove advantageous to their interests at this time, when there are so few compared to the demand for their labor."

HENRY HUNT, Health Officer.

Captain Morris, left Baltimore on the 28th inst. in the steam boat for Norfolk, to take command of the Naval Squadron there.

On Saturday last, the trial of Capt. Willberger, on a charge of causing the death of a seaman, during a voyage to the East-Indies, closed. The trial lasted several days, during which, great interest was excited. He was ably defended by counsel, who argued that the court had no jurisdiction over the case. The jury, after retiring a few hours, brought in their verdict manslaughter, provided the court had jurisdiction, which would cause him to be imprisoned not less than 12 years nor more than 20, but, we understand, he has given large security for his person, in case the next argument at Washington should determine that this court has jurisdiction. [Philadelphia Journal.]

GENERAL O'DONNELL.

In the New-York Daily Advertiser of Saturday morning, it is stated, on the authority of Captain Williams, of the Fanny, who arrived there last week from Cadiz, that before Capt. W. sailed, "orders were received from the Spanish government to release the officers who had been arrested upon the representation of Gen. O'Donnell, and compensation to be made them for their imprisonment; and that a military court was ordered to try Gen. O'Donnell, and it was supposed that he might be in hazard of even capital punishment."

VERMONT.

The legislature of this state convened at Montpelier, on the 14th ult. Governor Galusha was re-elected by a majority of nearly 10,000. In his speech at the opening of the Assembly, he announced his intention of retiring from public life, on the expiration of the year for which he is now elected.

The legislature of Tennessee has ordered an enquiry into the conduct of Gen. Jackson, during the Seminole war.

D. B. Warden, Esq. formerly consul from the United States to Paris, has recently published, at Edinburgh, three octavo volumes, purporting to be a Political, Statistical, and Historical Account of the United States, from their first settlement to the present day.

RAPID TRANSPORTATION.

It is stated in the Augusta (Geo.) Herald, of the 16th ult. that a gentleman in that city had recently received a package of goods from New York, via Savannah, in 144 hours.

The Highlands on the Hudson, are said to be covered with snow. So are the White Mountains in New-Hampshire, and even at Portsmouth, at sun rising, they make a most beautiful and glittering appearance.

[Salem Gaz.]

SINGULAR FORGERY.

Two men were lately convicted and sent to the state prison for forgery. Soon after they appeared publicly at liberty.—This produced an enquiry by what means they obtained their pardon. One of the judges of Herkimer county common pleas wrote to the governor for information. The governor returned him a petition for their pardon, signed by the judge himself, and many other respectable characters. It was accompanied by a statement of the occurrences at the trial, ingeniously drawn up, and calculated to make a strong case in favor of a pardon.—The whole proves to be a forgery, made for the purpose of imposing on the governor and to obtain a pardon, which was easily effected. [Utica Pat.]

Binn's superb edition of the declaration of independence, with the fac similes of the signers, is at length finished. It is pronounced in the National Advocate to be "the most truly splendid thing ever produced in America."

The hon. Robert Goodloe Harper, has returned to Baltimore from his European tour.

In the grand agricultural race which has been run this fall, the following counties have come out first, viz.

Oneida—wheat, 71 bushels to the acre.
do oats, 93 bushels to the acre.
do domestic manufactures,
Otsego—corn, 125 bushels 26 quarts to the acre.

Saratoga—potatoes, 714 bushels to the acre.
Schenectady—ruta бага, 1250 bu. to the ac.
Schoharie—in the best style of ploughing, and also in the novelty and farmer-like style of their procession.

Hampshire—in their oxen for the stall.

Hartford—for the most splendid—the most useful display, and the greatest abundance of excellent domestic manufactures, must be permitted to wave the triumphant flag of patriotism.

We shall readily correct errors and mistakes, and continue the review as we are furnished with materials. [Albany Gaz.]

THE LATE FEVER IN NEW-YORK.

Extract of a Report from the Board of Health.

The whole number of cases that has been reported to the board is 63—of these 37 ended fatally—23 in recovery—and of 3 the termination is unknown. Besides these, six of the persons removed to Fort Richmond carried with them the infection, sickened and died there—making the whole number of deaths of malignant fever, about 43. So small has been the mortality compared with that of other seasons in which this malady has prevailed. The disorder was at first extremely mortal; the first ten persons who were afflicted with it died—as the season advanced its malignity abated, and the recoveries became less rare. It may be worthy of remark, that of the sick removed to Fort Stevens, notwithstanding the fatigue of their removal, a greater portion recovered than of those who remained in the city—of 13 sent there, 7 died and 6 recovered."

A CORPORATION OF VANDALS.

There is a town in this state, about forty miles from Portsmouth, containing between 5 and 600 inhabitants, in which, there is neither Minister, Lawyer, Doctor, nor Justice of the Peace! Neither Meeting-House, Town-House, or Tavern; no Store, and but one Grog-Shop, and that has but little stock and less custom. The town is at present without either Town Clerk or Representative, and has no School going on!

[New-Hampshire Gazette.]

The following rude and ill mannered paragraph, is copied from the Montreal Herald of October 23.

"Among the occurrences of the week we find, Lieut. Gen. Scott, Col. House, and some others belonging to the U. States army, passed through this city on their way to N. York, from Sackett's Harbor. This is rather a curious route—we hope, these be true men and no spies."

An impression prevails (says the Kentucky Herald, of October 13) that some of the banks at Nashville pay specie for their notes; we believe we are correct in stating, that this is not the fact. None of them pay any thing.

Some of the southern papers have stated, on authority of a Boulogne article of an old date, that a secret expedition was fitting out at Plymouth, England, and give Havana as its place of destination, to act as circumstances may require in case of a rupture between Spain and the United States;—but the editor of the Boston Centinel, (who, in knowledge of these affairs, don't dows his peak to any man) says, "the only English expedition fitting out, as late as the middle of September, was one of four sail, destined to the Pacific Ocean, to act as the violent conduct and blockading decess of Lord Cochrane might make necessary." [Newburyport Herald.]

A London paper says that a disabled sailor chalked out the effigies of the whole British Navy, on the brick wall of Kew Gardens, and placed over each the vessel's name and the number of her guns. In this way he has drawn about 300 vessels, from 5 to 6 feet long, occupying altogether a distance of more than a mile. Passing travellers give the draughtsman a few half pence for his pains, which afford him a maintenance.

Brig Nancy, Captain Swasey, sailed from Newyurport Oct. 28, for Martinique, with the following passengers, composing the company of Equestrians, who have been performing in this town, and several of their connections, viz. Mr. and Mrs. Pepin, and two children, Miss Wealand, Mrs. Tattall, Miss Brown, Messrs. Campbell, Meneall, Bogardus, Tattall, Mabier, Bullen, Moran, Garcia, Desolane, Masters Thomas, Coty, and M'Carn, Mr. Beal, clerk, and eight servants, door-keepers, grooms, &c. together with their horses, equipments, &c. preparatory to a winter campaign in the West-Indies. They express high satisfaction with the liberal support the inhabitants of Newburyport have given them during their stay in town—we trust this sentiment is reciprocal. [Herald.]

In the court of common pleas, now sitting in this town, (says the Boston Daily Advertiser) a libel case of rather a novel nature was decided. It appeared in evidence, that the plaintiff, who is a minor, had at various times used language towards the defendant, (who was at the time a minor likewise), not at all complimentary: that he had called him "a dandy,"—and when the defendant was riding out, he had in an audible voice recommended him to have his dog's back insured, &c.—Upon which the defendant procured a small handbill to be printed, warning the public of the plaintiff's conduct, and in which, after the insertion of his name, he threatened him with the application of the horsewhip unless a reformation took place. The suit was brought by the plaintiff, for damages sustained by the posting up and publishing of these hand-bills. After the evidence was gone through with, Mr. Austin, counsel for the defendant, addressed the jury in behalf of his client, at some length, and with his usual ingenuity. Mr. S. L. Knapp, for the plaintiff, then set forth the evils that would arise if such a breach of the laws, and such an attack upon the character and reputation of a young man just entering on active life, were suffered to pass without suitable damages, in a plea of some length, and with his characteristic skill. The hon. judge, in giving the charge to the jury, made a nice distinction between a slanderous assertion or publication, and a libellous one, and pointed this out to be one of the former, and altho' one from which no great injury had probably been sustained, yet one which demanded exemplary punishment. The jury, after a short absence, returned with a verdict for the plaintiff—damages 100 dollars and costs.

ECCENTRICITY.

I shall esteem it a particular favor if you will insert in your paper these few particulars concerning the late Mr. Calfie. This celebrated gentleman, in early youth, showed few signs of his great abilities; he was even so remarkably unpromising, that he was considered incapable of succeeding to a small independence left him by his uncle. His relatives had the cause tried at York, in 1750, and many supposed that he would be declared an idiot. Among various questions (to prove whether he had sense or not) he was asked in court, how many legs a sheep had. Do you mean, he replied, a live one or a dead one? a live one has four, a dead one only two—the other become the shoulders.—By this uncommon display of a great capacity, he was ranked by the vulgar as one of those characters who have sense but seldom show it; and he was suffered to succeed to his estate without any further molestation. He now became a poet, a philosopher, and an antiquary. He celebrated in verse a certain liquor drank freely by the ladies of fashion in York; and, though they modestly call it vapor water, he proved it to be pure French brandy. He declared perpetual motion consisted in his wife's tongue; and on account of his veneration for antiquities, the color of his inexpressibles was green, in strict imitation of Adam.

He was nearly hung thrice; first, for shooting at a chimney-sweeper, whom he mistook for the devil; secondly, for stealing a haltar with something alive at the end of it, and, thirdly, by having suspended himself, in order to write a more perfect description of death. He kept a raven in a large iron cage, in order to ascertain whether or not it would live 700 years. He only once in his life visited the theatre. He was delighted with the music at the beginning, and, observing two actors come forth, (in the first scene,) who spoke in rather a low tone, he deliberately left the place, observing, that perhaps those gentlemen might wish to talk secrets. Tho' he was extremely singular in his dress, notwithstanding the impulse of fashion, or the earnest entreaties of his friends, he never could be prevailed upon to wear a tail. He proved, beyond all doubt, that man never attempted to sing until he heard the nightingale. He followed the Greenlanders to scalp the bear, and wear its shaggy honors; he suffered the Calmuc Tartar to dress in sheepskin, and the Ostiacks to decorate their heads with horns; but he could not contain his indignation when he thought that the Europeans, a civilized people, should borrow fashions from animals, and particularly that of the tail, a part of all others the most vulgar, the most ridiculous, and the most disgusting.

Notwithstanding the eccentricity of his manners, he was elected alderman of York, a station which he filled for thirty years.

He died in 1778, and lies buried in St. Michael's church in York. On his tombstone is this inscription:—"Here rests the body of John Calfie, Esq. who lived 49 years in this world, 13 of which he was alderman of York."—Honor, honor, honor."

DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

I was conversing a few evenings ago with an old friend on the subject of prevailing vices, and contrasting the past with the present, I imagined that society had somewhat improved, that morality seemed to be more felt and studied than it was formerly, and that a disposition, generally speaking, seemed to prevail of doing what was right. I take no pleasure in dwelling on the dull side of a picture, where there bright touches, and agreeable tints to admire; nor would I censure a community for faults which were not apparent, or withhold that meed of praise which merit, virtue and good actions claim. I therefore thought, that among decreasing vices I might reckon "gambling," which I flattered myself was happily getting daily into disrepute. You are in error, observed my friend, and I am sorry to say it:—once gambling was confined to a high sphere—none but kings and noble men were authorized to rob their people, and then each other; under this friendly and seductive mark it shortly spread like an epidemic, and infected what was called high classes—the mechanic, and the laborer was preserved by that purity of thought which arises from employment and economy, but, alas! the disease has even affected them. Come, said he, it is a pleasant night—take a walk with me, and I will show you how this vice is nourished in the heart of a moral community. I will attend you, said I, if you even lead me where no "lamp burns"—my powers of locomotion are at least equal to yours. We took our departure as St. Paul's chimed eight o'clock, and after crossing several squares, and passing through lonely alleys, we entered what seemed to be a tavern, and on going up stairs in a long room, we found a large table surrounded by mechanics, dirty laborers and ragged boys; they were employed at a game called lotto or king—the master drew the numbers from a wheel, while the company covered such as appeared on small placards before them, and when they obtained a certain number, they claimed and took the purse.—Here was high life in miniature;—loud and boisterous mirth, obscene language, and deep imprecations, prevailed among this clan of apprentice boys, who instead of being detained at their honest labor, stole an hour, and probably the means to gratify a vicious propensity. Masters have the same duty to perform as parents, and while they receive great credit in sending an honest apprentice forth, they cannot escape a great portion of censure if that apprentice is an idler and a gamester. We left this humble habitation of vice to examine some of a more elevated character, (for vice has degrees) and we shortly entered a celebrated billiard room, brilliantly illuminated, and the glare of light introduced to our view a number of young men genteely dressed; they were merchants and attorney's clerks, together with a few who had no pursuits at all: I watched them for a half hour—a couple played a game for oysters—another set played for wine—a party was made for pool, in which game several played for money, while the lookers on smoked segars and drank brandy and water; oaths were heard in abundance, and the smashing of maces, bouncing of balls, and cries for the waiter, gave a dismal coloring to the scene. Here was another picture of vice which debases the character of our city. Could the parents and employers of these young men find no other pursuit for them?—Were they so indifferent to their morality and prosperity as to pass over in silence these nightly and deadly debauches? If they had no employment—Why not improve their mind and amuse their fancy with a book? If they had no book, and their time was heavy—why not pass an hour with a neighboring friend, or a pleasant and worthy family? and if these advantages are denied them, and they have no book, no friend, but must walk the streets at night to search for objects of amusement, let them enter those places of worship which are nightly opened, and join in prayer and anthem; there they will find a friend—a true one, who never turns a deaf ear to a sincere applicant. How much more delightfully would their moments pass, than thus burying their honor and prosperity, their health and industry in an untimely grave of debauchery and excess.

I took my departure from this scene, as my friend told me there was yet a higher sphere of vice to visit—and we shortly entered a large brick house, and nished and lighted; several card tables surrounded with persons, playing whist and faro. We were introduced formally, for ceremony was maintained in this temple, as they were all gentlemen there

—all whose debts were debts of honor.
On a side table refreshments were placed, and I was invited, in the most flattering manner, to take punch, the hospitable host, no doubt intending to ply me with liquors in order to "screw my courage to the sticking point." The whist players were amusing themselves with playing for 50 dollar points, a mere trifle; and one observed, that he should quit whist and try faro, if he lost more than $500. Finding so little interest in looking on, I placed myself near the faro table; here were several venturing with all the zeal of a most unnatural and hectic excitement—their faces, the alternate picture of hope and despair—fear, joy, anxiety and agitation prevailed: here was one filling up checks on the bank and losing them quickly, yet going on to fill even to ruination—another with a pile of notes and half eagles before him, on which he ever and anon stole a greedy and delighted glance, while his opposite neighbor, who had lost his all, fixed his wan
and sunken eye on the glittering store, in deep despair; here was one striding rapidly up and down the room, beating his head that "let the folly in, and the dear reason out"—there another pouring down glass after glass, to drown redemption—while a third sat gnawing
the ends of his fingers, and muttering curses "loud and deep." Mournful infatuation. To what will this avail, this "un sacra fames," lean men to?
I recognized, among these fast mortals,
several gentlemen of family and respectability, several merchants who subsequently stopped payment, but could give no account of 40,000 dollars.— Here they were destroying the hopes of their family, and sinking their peace of mind in a gaming house, while the fond and estimable wife counted the sad hours of their absence, and alone in their sumptuous dwellings, waiting night after night for their return; pacing the room in perturbation; raking together the expiring embers; marking the glimmering of the dying taper;
starting at every rustling sound; her heart, which should be tranquil, beating with alarm, until the truant husband's well known knock revives and animates her—when his disordered dress, his pale and anguished countenance, and the deep drawn sigh of misfortune, draws from his heart broken companion, the silent tear of agony; while cold and comfortless, with aching head and heart
he throws his listless person on his bed, and groans the living night with a poor wife, whom his vices have made wretched. Shame—shame, that a man should permit his reason to be thus sacrificed by an inordinate thirst of gain, a miserable, misguided infatuation. No gambler ever died rich—though fortune for years, may have deluded him with smiles, yet she deserts him at his at-most need; and bread which honest labor earns, is sweeter to the appetite, and a greater cordial to the soul, than the luxuries purchased with the gains at play, gains acquired only to be again lost—gains obtained at the expense of the peace, happiness and prosperity of whole families. HOWARD.

Missing.

ABOUT seven years past, I borrowed a small old wire cage of Mr. R. Conway, to put a bird in at the Museum. The cage remained in my possession about ten days, and having no further use for it, I sent it to him, and supposed he had received it, as I never heard any thing of it till lately. It has been determined by a magistrate that I must return the same cage within ten days, or pay the sum of five dollars, being the value set upon it. Perhaps some person may have this cage, without knowing to whom it belongs.
I would be much obliged, if I could receive any information on this subject.

Thirty Dollars Reward.

ABSCONDED from the residence of his master, in Washington city, on the evening of Thursday last, a negro boy named SAM, who calls himself SAM BROWN.—
He is about 19 years of age, not of the deepest black, and is a stout, well set likely boy.
He had on when he went away, a blue cloth jacket, corduroy pantaloons, and white vest;
and took with him, besides, a blue cloth coat, white pantaloons, and white vest. He is the property of William Lowndes, Esq., and it is supposed he has been induced, in the absence of his master, to leave home, by some designing person. It is probable he will aim to reach some northern port, or to get on board of some boat or vessel in the river. Whoever will deliver the said boy to the Jailor of Washington city, shall receive the above reward, on application at the office of the National Intelligencer.

ROMULUS RIGGS.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling.

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case; and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeyman's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or dissatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment.

Was Committed,

TO the jail for the county of Alexandria on the 3d inst. as a runaway, a negro man called BEN HENDERSON, supposed to be the property of George Thornton, of King George county. The said negro is about 50 years of age; 5 feet 6 inches high; bald head; and a shoemaker by trade. The owner is desired to come prove property, pay charges, and take him away, otherwise he will be disposed of as the law directs.
ANDW. ROUNSAVELL,
September 8 Jailor.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN away on the 28th of April, from the farm of the subscriber, in Dogue Neck, Fairfax Co. Virginia, negro HARRY, aged about twenty three years, about five feet ten inches high, very black, well built, has a considerable impediment in his speech, when spoken to evinces much confusion, and replies almost unintelligibly: had on when he left home, a much worn suit of domestic cloth. I have every reason to believe that he is endeavoring to pass for a free man, and as such went off in some of the bay craft during the late fishing season. All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them. I will give twenty dollars, if taken in the county of Fairfax, or district of Columbia; if beyond that distance, the above reward, provided he is secured in jail so that I get him again.
WM. MASON.
Charles County, Md. June 1.
The editors of the National Intelligencer and Baltimore Federal Gazette will insert the above until forbid, and send their accounts to Port Tobacco for payment.
June 11

100 Dollars Reward.

I WILL give the above reward to any person who will return to my possession, negro LAWRENCE, who assumes the surname of FENWICK. This fellow left my farm, on the Wicomico river, in Charles county, Md. on the 6th July, in consequence of his own outrageous conduct towards my overseer. He is a negro of a fine erect figure, good features, smooth black skin, rather above the middle stature, of a youthful appearance for one of thirty years of age, and of great plausibility and natural smartness. His ears grow remarkably close to his head, and on the inside of his lower lip he has a white mark or spot. I purchased him 4 years ago of the estate of Mrs. P. H. Courts, of this county. I am led (by circumstances which have come to my knowledge, since he absconded,) to believe that he will endeavor to make his way to King George county, Va.; should he not take this route, he will probably be met within the District of Columbia, or in the upper counties of this state, on his way to Pennsylvania. I apprehend he will change his name, and if committed to jail, refuse to state to whom he belongs, as the misconduct which preceded his departure, & his absconding, have all appeared since to have been premeditated. He took all his clothes with him, of which he had a large number; among them—a new bearskin overcoat, a long close-bodied blue coat, a pair of striped jean pantaloons, one or more white waistcoats, besides many articles of coarse clothing; these, however, he will probably exchange, or sell them for cash to defray his travelling expenses.
I will give the above reward to any person who will bring him home to me, or FIFTY DOLLARS if confined in jail, and notice given me, so that I recover him.—Should he be taken out of the state, I will also pay all reasonable costs and charges which may attend the bringing him home.

PROSPECTUS

Of a new periodical work to be published in the city of Washington, entitled the Washington Theological REPERTORY.

EDITORS. [Rev. Wm. HAWLEY, Washington, Rev. Wm. H. WILMER, Alexandria, Rev. OLIVER NORRIS, Alexandria, Rev. REUEL KEITH, Georgetown.]
Assisted by several other literary gentlemen of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

If any apology were necessary for this undertaking, it may be found in the fact, that there is no publication on a similar plan, in all that section of our country lying south of New-York, and but one in the whole of the United States. It has been matter of equal surprise and regret, that the Episcopal Church should be so far behind other Christian denominations, in similar efforts to disseminate the principles of religion and piety. At a period like the present, when the Lord is preparing his way on earth, by the most remarkable efforts of human agency, and the most wonderful operations of his providence and grace—when we perceive in every part of Christendom, a praise-worthy emulation to share in the glorious work of filling the earth with the knowledge of the only true God, and his Son Jesus Christ; it would seem criminal for any to withhold their exertions, however feeble, in the great enterprise of human happiness and salvation. The editors have, therefore, felt it their duty to make this humble effort to supply this acknowledged deficiency on the part of the church in this section of the country, and to bear their share in the common exertions of Christians to promote the Redeemer's Kingdom. And having obtained the services of a gentleman, in whose talents and principles they have confidence, whose time will be wholly devoted to the superintendence of the work, they feel encouraged to solicit the patronage of the public.

The publication will be conducted under the immediate inspection and control of the above named editors, who will form a committee to review every article intended for publication. The principles upon which it will be conducted are those of the bible, as illustrated in the articles, Liturgy and Homilies of the Protestant Episcopal Church. As members of this church the editors will feel bound to support the Apostolic character of her institutions, the pious tendency of her rites and ceremonies, and the evangelical nature of her doctrines. But in these, and all other discussions, they hope never to lose sight of that great law of charity which teaches us to "preserve the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace."

Acting upon those catholic principles, so long and so successfully pursued by "The Christian Observer," their chief object will be to inculcate sound theological knowledge, and to delineate and recommend pure and vital religion. They trust therefore, that while the members of every Christian denomination may find something edifying and instructive, none will discover any just cause for offence in the pages of this work. General subjects of biblical criticism, practical illustrations of scriptural truth, the biography of illustrious persons, evidences of the truth of revelation, essays on the history and polity of the church, reviews of interesting publications, religious, literary and philosophical intelligence—in short, whatever is connected with the promotion of religion, humanity and literature, will find a place in this repository.

The testimony of experience supersedes the necessity of dwelling on the advantages of a periodical publication on the plan proposed. Its obvious tendency will be to render the various departments of religious knowledge more easy and accessible, and give a more ready currency and wider circulation, to those great truths which involve the present welfare and future destiny of man.

It will tend powerfully to stimulate the exertions of the editors, and console them under the difficulties attendant on the prosecution of this work, amidst many other avocations, should it prove the means under the blessing of God, of enriching any of its readers with the saving knowledge of Christ, and prepare them for a participation in the felicity and glory of his heavenly kingdom. With this hope they commit it into his hands, and confidently solicit their brethren of the clergy and laity to assist them in carrying into effect the objects of the undertaking.

TERMS OF THE WORK.
A volume of the Repertory shall consist of twelve numbers, of which one shall be published on the first day of every month, containing thirty-two large octavo pages, stitched in blue, and attended with a table of contents.

The paper used in the work shall be good, and the typography executed with the greatest care.

The price of a volume is two dollars, payable in advance; to such as omit the advance, two dollars and fifty cents.

It is designed to enlarge the size of the work, without increasing the price, as soon as one thousand subscribers shall be obtained.

Communications and remittances may be directed to any of the editors, post paid.

Any person becoming responsible for five subscribers, shall receive a sixth copy gratis.

The first number may be expected in the month of July.
